DOE officials, in Rumford, discuss nuclear waste sites

About 400 Rumford-area residents showed up Monday night, according to Rumford police estimates, at the Rumford High School auditorium to ask questions of Department of Energy officials concerning high-level nuclear waste sites. The DOE is examining 236 areas in 17 states where there are crystalline rock formations. These rock formations are believed, by the DOE, to be safe places for permanent burial of high-level nuclear wastes.

Of the 236 areas being looked at, 32 are in Maine—six of them in Oxford County. (See map.) Across the state border, there are 26 areas in New Hampshire being looked at.

Most of the information elicited from the DOE officials (who flew in from Chicago) was information already reported by The Citizen: that the DOE is currently deciding upon a first site out west, which site should be operational in 1998; that in regard to a second site, the department only has congressional authority to select a suitable site—not begin constructing it; that even though an area might have suitable rock formations for a site, other factors (such as fault lines, wilderness areas, high population or groundwater supplies) could completely remove it from contention; that a preliminary selection will be announced next month, trimming the 236 areas in 17 states to 15-20 areas in 4-6 states; that further study of the 15-20 potential sites would (by 1991) narrow the field down to three, at which point politicians would have to decide on the final choice—and then the Congress would have to authorize construction of a second site.

The Monday night question-and-answer session was one of two organized ed by the governor's office following two protest meetings of Rumford residents in recent months. The second session was held last night in Augusta. State Sen. Ed Erwin (D-Rumford), who made the local arrangements for the Rumford meeting, told The Citizen, "I think it only fitting that the first meeting was held in Rumford because of all the interest shown there."

In addition to Sen. Erwin, other politicians on hand for the Rumford meeting included State Rep. Phyllis Erwin (D-Rumford), State Sen. Judy Kany (D-Waterville), and a Rumford selectman, Sen. Kany, who chairs the state's low-level waste siting committee, has been active in bringing out information on the high-level waste problem as well.

The 17 states whose areas of crystal line rock are being looked at by DOE are divided into three regions: north central, northeastern, and southeastern. In the north central region are Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin. In the northeastern region are Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont. In the southeastern region are Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

Contrary to opinions expressed by some Rumford residents, the DOE officials said the second site did not necessarily have to be in the northeast, or, for that matter, in any of the central or eastern states. The second site, as the first, could also be in the west. DOE's Scott Hirschberger, geologist for the project, said, "The act (Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982) says we need to consider regionality, not that we have to

THE ABOVE MAP shows the areas (shaded) containing rock formations the DOE believes might be suitable for the burial of high-level nuclear wastes. The map is a portion of the DOE's northeastern region map. There are 32 areas in Maine with rock formations being studied—six in Oxford County.

Greenwood votes overwhelmingly against nightclub

Greenwood voters, at a special town meeting last night, voted overwhelmingly against selling the former Locke Mills Elementary School building to Russ McDonald for conversion into a nightclub. The vote was 153 against the motion, versus only 17 for the motion. The total vote—170—was the largest number of voters to ever show up for a town meeting, annual or special, in the memory of Moderator Raymond W. Seames, who has been attending Greenwood town meetings for 25 years.

Others agreed. Selectman Norman Millett said, "I've never seen such a big crowd at any town meeting."

The crowd overflowed the town hall meeting room. People were seated in the rows of chairs and also all along the walls. What had brought them all out was the petitioned article to have the selectmen sell the school building to Russ McDonald, of the Hofbrau Restaurant, for $1 plus other considerations. Mr. McDonald had promised to put $100,000 of improvements into the building and turn it into a nightclub that would give skiers at Mt. Abram a place to go at night. "I propose this as a good neighbor," he said.

Opposition to the idea came from those who didn't want a nightclub in town as well as from those who thought the price was ludicrous. "It's not in the town's interest to sell this building for one dollar," continued on Page Three

Gloria—a gentle giant—some hardship; no grief

Probably the worst effect of Hurricane Gloria in Bethel was that the mails didn't arrive Saturday—the day after the hurricane passed through. In fact, the mails didn't even get sorted in Portland and Auburn, where the post offices were without power.

Bethel Postmaster Gayland Doon said it was the first time he could recall that the mails didn't arrive in the area, pointing out that the local mail went out alright Friday evening. The problem in the cities, he said, was that they have new electronic sorting equipment, and when the power goes out they have no way whatsoever of sorting the mail.

For people in areas around Bethel, the inconveniences were greater, particularly in the Songo Pond, Woodstock and West Paris areas, where people went without power for days and worried about food spoiling in refrigerators and freezers. But, all in all, what had begun as one of the most severe Atlantic hurricanes on record passed right through western Maine with no more severity than a winter nor'easter.

Telstar and Oxford Hills school districts sent their students home at noon Friday while forecasters were predicting 100-knot winds. Soon thereafter, however, it became apparent that the storm was losing force rapidly as it came up through New England from its landfall on Long Island, N.Y.

By late-afternoon, the storm had become poorly defined, although the counter-clockwise wind circulation con-

Convention center site moved to behind Elms

Because of the delay in beginning construction on the Bethel Inn expansion project, inn officials have decided to push ahead quickly with one part of the expansion, that is, the convention center. They have also decided to move the location of the planned convention center, from the original planned site adjacent to the golf course, to the other side of Broad Street, in back of The Elms—one of the inn's buildings.

Company president Dick Rasor explained that the site for the convention center was changed in order to have the golf course location reserved for the indoor pool, sauna and guest room complex.

The million-dollar-plus expansion plan originally envisioned a single complex containing the convention center, an indoor pool, sauna, game room, and snack bar, plus 17 additional guest rooms. The plans called for construction to begin Sept. 3 and the pool and guest rooms to be completed before the Christmas season. The plans further called for the convention center to be completed by spring.

However, as loan negotiations with a consortium of banks and the federal Small Business Administration dragged on past the groundbreaking date, inn officials decided to start with the convention center.

Citizen announces winter tourism tabloid

The Bethel Citizen, as it did last year, will publish a tabloid-size winter recreation guide to the Bethel area. Last year's guide was credited by many for helping to produce the area's biggest winter tourism season ever.

Distribution of this year's guide will be even more extensive than last year. Publisher Bernard Wideman said 35,000 winter tourism tabloids will be printed, with distribution through the Boston Ski Show, through two dozen sports stores north of Boston, by direct mail to 13,000 skiers from Providence, R.I., to Augusta, Me., and through area inns and restaurants.

The Citizen began publishing tourism tabloids a year ago, producing one for each tourism season: winter, summer and fall. The colorful tabloids inform tourists and potential tourists about what to do and where to stay in the area, as well as about the people of the area. Last summer's recreation guide was awarded second place by the Maine Press Association for supplements produced by weekly newspapers.

The deadline for advertising and other materials for this year's winter recreation guide is Oct. 18.

Sand pile at Woodstock will have to be moved

At the meeting of the Woodstock selectmen on Tuesday evening of this week, it was revealed that municipal officials had received a notice from the Department of Environmental Protection that the sand/salt pile near the town garage would have to be moved. An anonymous complaint was filed that the material was contaminating a nearby stream. The water was examined and found to be considerably affected by the salt. In addition, the well dug to service the municipal garage also showed high salt content and had a strong hydrogen sulphide odor.

John Williams of the DEP's Bureau of Water Quality Control, stated in a letter to the selectmen, "I would suspect that the Woodstock salt storage site will be listed as a high priority site and thus will need to be moved to an acceptable location and have all salt/sand-salt stored under cover." This means finding or constructing a suitable building that will keep the pile dry and also have an impervious base.

The selectmen also noted that since Auburn has taken over incineration for

Film on early logging tomorrow at Gould

In the early-1930s, Machias lumberman Alfred Ames made a film to record the end of an era in the logging industry. Half a century later, it has evolved into an all-out historic preservation effort by a team of Maine's leading film producers, historians and folklorists. Funded by a Maine Humanities Council grant and Champion International Corp., the original film entitled "From Stump to Ship" has been re-assembled in a project undertaken by the University of Maine at Orono and the Northeast Archives of Folklore and Oral History. The film is being shown in various places in the state this month.

Locally, "From Stump to Ship" will be shown Thursday, Oct. 3, at Bingham Hall, Gould Academy, Bethel, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free. Following the showing, a reception, with refreshments, will be held at the Dr. Moses Mason House on Broad Street.

The 1930s was a time of transition in Maine's lumber industry. A great majority of Maine's logging was no longer long lumber but pulpwood for paper. Moving logs on the river was becoming Often, in a country seemingly run by computers and faceless bureaucrats, we get the feeling that no one hears our voice. This feeling, in turn, often leads us to drop out of participating in government. Which, in turn, guarantees that, in truth, no one will hear our voice—except our friends we gripe with over coffee.

Caution: Democracy at work

But recently we have had a couple of good examples that what individual people think and say carries real weight, if they say it in an organized fashion.

Last night, Greenwood residents filled the town hall to overflowing to express their determination not to sell their heritage cheaply. Last week, school district voters—informed and then urged by groups of concerned parents—voted overwhelmingly to accept the burden of additional taxes in order to build a new elementary school in Woodstock.

There were those who thought the school issue would never pass. And there were those who felt there wouldn't be enough Greenwood voters at special town meeting to make a real difference. The doubters were wrong.

Of course, participatory democracy is not just a matter of voting. It's also a matter of keeping informed and doing organizational work. Our neighbors in Rumford were involved in this sort of democratic practice Monday night as they grilled Department of Energy officials about plans for the burial of nuclear wastes.

There is still much we need to know about this matter, and a knee-jerk reaction saying simply, "I don't want it in my backyard," will not suffice. With garbage this extensive and this lethal, the entire country is our backyard and we must re-think our options for the production of the waste as well as options for disposal of the waste. bfw

Labans named premier Romney breeders at Eastern States Expo

On Sept. 12 at the Eastern States Exposition, West Springfield, Mass., John and Suzanne Laban of Bethel were named Premier Romney Sheep Breeders for 1985.

They showed against nine other Romney breeders from as far away as Maryland. In classes numbering as high as 17 animals, they finished no lower than sixth, including a first place in the ram lamb class.

This is the first time Romneys have been shown at Eastern States. The breed originated in England, and is noted for its carcass quality and long lustrous wool.

In addition to Romneys, the Labans keep a small flock of colored sheep. They produce and sell breeding stock, market lambs, fleeces for handspinning and naturally colored and dyed handspun yarn.

SAFE WOODBURNING CLINIC AT FIRE STATION OCT. 10

Tim Vrabie, Maine Office of Energy Resources Conservation Specialist, will present a Safe Woodburning Clinic at 7 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 10, at the Bethel Fire Station. Mr. Vrabie recently presented a firefighter oriented program of a similar nature at a training session of the Bethel Fire Department.

Recent laboratory testing, Mr. Vrabie explained, shows that wood which is exposed to high temperatures over an extended period of time undergoes structural changes so the ignition temperature of the affected wood is drastically lowered. This phenomenon may mean that a wood stove installation which has been in place for five to 10 years with no problem may be approaching a dangerous condition. Bethel Fire Chief Bob Davis urges woodburning homeowners to attend this program.

Notes from Woodstock Historical Society

The following information is taken from the obituary of Captain John F. Dearborn:

Dearborn was born in Boston March 27, 1834 and died at the age of 72. His grandfather, Benjamin Dearborn, was the inventor of bar scales, from which he made a fortune of $100,000. His father was also an inventor of merit. Dearborn shipped early in life as an able-bodied seaman. On Dec. 27, 1861 he was appointed by President Lincoln an acting master in the United States Navy and assigned to the USS J.P. Jackson where he served for two years, part of the time with Farragut, with whom he was present at the bombardment of the lower defenses of New Orleans, Forts Jackson and St. Philip. He assisted at the surrender of New Orleans and also fought at Vicksburg. From March 18, 1864 until 1866 he served as master of the Charlestown Navy Yard. After retiring, he set up as a spool manufacturer in Portsmouth before moving to this area.

In Maine, he first set up a mill in Locke's Mills, which was totally destroyed by fire in 1879. He rebuilt in Bryant Pond. The town gave him exemption from taxes for ten years to build there. In 1884 there was a boiler explosion at the mill. He rebuilt the mill and eventually paid off his creditors. The mill was prospering at the time of his death with a payroll running to twelve or fifteen hundred dollars a month.

The following is a description of Dearborn himself: "In person Captain Dearborn was stout and heavily built, with a strong, dominant face and large magnetic eyes. Strikingly handsome as a youth, he retained even at his advanced age much of the force and vigor which formerly distinguished him. He was a great lover of home, and...delighted in improving the luxurious home which he purchased... Music and books were his delight; he sang delightfully and could on occasion, quote Byron or Shakespeare fluently. Horses too, attracted him, and his blooded trotters were objects of envy with all connoisseurs of horsemanship."

Dearborn once owned the building which is now the Woodstock Historical Society. He also gave Dearborn's Grove to the town for the purpose of holding religious meetings.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The parents of Woodstock Elementary School extend a sincere thank you to everyone who assisted in our referendum win on Sept. 24. We would like to thank each of you personally but we do not know everyone who made calls, talked to relatives and neighbors about our cause or just took the time and effort to come and vote "Yes."

Special thanks go to Jean Bass, Mary McVey, Sandy Wheeler, Linda Endicott, and the other members of the Bethel Parent Group as well as Sharon Hutchins and the Andover Parent Group. They gave countless hours on the phone and in person talking to the people in their communities about our need for a new school. The positive feelings that have come out of this shared effort go beyond this single project and we look forward to working together in the future to improve elementary education throughout SAD #44.

Thanks also to Mr. Craig, Mr. Powell, Cathy Newell, Nancy Davis, David Murphy, and the SAD #44 Board of Directors. They all worked long and hard to make a new elementary school in Woodstock a reality.

We look forward to seeing all of you at the dedication in 1987.

Thank you for including my happy thought in your Bethel column. Your correspondent received my account freely.

Your readers will be glad to know that The Bible Exhibit in Christian Science Church Center in Boston, Mass., is always open to all who enjoy and practice the truth in The Holy Bible.

Again, thank you sincerely.

To the Editor:

Enclosed is cash for an extra copy of (the Sept. 4 Citizen). Your editorials were so interesting that I passed my copy around and I don't think it's coming back. (The rest of the paper was good, too. And your fall supplement was superb.)

Please keep us informed about your Freedom of Information request regarding the White Mountain National Forest plan. I suspect that we residents of western Maine and northern New Hampshire are too often intimidated by the downstate bureaucracies. When it comes to the Feds, we are positively paralyzed. It's encouraging to see The Citizen take some action. Let us know if we can help!

Your editorial on the shoe industry was the best I've read on this subject. This trade protectionist movement is a dangerous trend for our small communities. How many opportunities have we lost when the government has propped up so-called "traditional" industries? How much new capital investment and how many new, higher-paying jobs have we foregone? Government protection of these industries amounts to a hidden tax—not only by forcing consumers to pay higher prices on shoes, but by distorting a community's investment base, labor force, tax base and ultimately its future growth. Your common sense was appreciated.

Finally, your suggestion that Labor Day be celebrated on May Day was mischievous and noodle-headed. We celebrate the pride of the individual working man and woman, not the socialist notion of a collective laboring class. It's the first Monday in September for me, comrade.

Editor's note: As a result of The Citizen's Freedom of Information Act request, information on the forest management plan was provided the paper by the U.S. Forest Service. It was published in last week's edition.

GIRLS' STATE DELEGATES Michelle Cummings and Suzi Roy (third and fourth from left), sponsored by the Jackson-Silver Unit of Locke Mills, told about their experiences at a meeting at the American Legion hall last Thursday. Ruth Jucius, assistant director of Girls' State (left), and Shirley Williams, director of Girls' State, were on hand to talk about Girls' State.

To the Editor:

The Maine Department of Transportation went for it when they could. I must say they did a beautiful job. The East Bethel Road has finally gotten a long-deserved facelift. It's really great.

I just want to say thank-you to the Highway Department and Pikes for the beautiful strip of highway. We East Bethel residents will enjoy it for years to come.

Thanks, Citizen.

To the Editor:

In reference to your "Editor's note" of Sept. 25.

The admonition of Jesus Christ in Matthew 22:39—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"—sorely taxes the heart of a Christian when others of like faith are referred to in an unlovely manner. We remember Christ's words—in the Sermon on the Mount and the Beatitudes: "Blessed are they who are persecuted for righteousness sake."

(choose a different region for the second site). Richard Schassburger, the north-central regional manager for the DOE project, said there are already 10,000 metric tons of high-level nuclear waste at commercial reactors and another 10,000 metric tons of waste from military applications of nuclear energy. By the turn of the century, DOE estimates there will be a total of 50,000 metric tons of high-level nuclear waste at various places in the country.

Since the first repository will only hold 70,000 metric tons of waste, it will be nearly filled soon after it opens, in 1998. Therefore, the DOE believes a second site will be needed.

A typical nuclear power plant, such as Maine Yankee, produces 300 pounds of high-level waste annually, the officials said. There are 94 licensed nuclear power plants in the U.S., with 33 more currently being built.

Some of those objecting to a federal high-level waste site argued that the commercial users of the atomic fuels should be responsible themselves for disposal of the fuel wastes. They also argued that permanent burial of the wastes is dangerous and it would be safer to temporarily store the spent fuel at the reactor sites, as is currently being done, until a proven long-term solution can be found for the waste problem.

While a number of disposal options have been considered, DOE officials said, the most promising solution appears to be burial in rock. The burial vaults would be between 1,500 and 3,000 feet below the surface, and would stretch out 2,000 acres below ground. Control facilities above ground would require 400 acres, while 10,000 to 20,000 acres around the site would be restricted in use. Although activities such as hunting and farming would be permissible, any quarrying would not be, the officials said.

Transportation to the site would be important, the officials said, and preliminary plans envision a distribution site in Tennessee collecting high-level

NLRB INVESTIGATOR VISITS PORTLAND TO GATHER FACTS

National Labor Relations Board investigator Robert Pulcini met yesterday in Portland with lawyers for Stowell's mill to ask them questions about charges laid against Stowell's by Local 77 of the United Furniture Workers of America—the union that used to represent the Stowell workers. After the mill was foreclosed upon by Casco Northern Bank it was taken over by the Pace Corp., of Connecticut and mostly new workers were hired.

The union complained to the NLRB that the new management purposefully did not hire those workers connected with the union.

WOMEN'S HEALTH SERIES STARTS OCT. 10

The SAD #44 Adult and community education program will offer a special series of seminars entitled The Women's Health Series beginning on Oct. 10. The series which will focus on health issues of particular concern to women will begin with a program on Premenstrual Syndrome (PMS) by Dr. Pixie Williams of the Bethel Area Health Center. The lecture will be at Telstar Regional High School in Room 105 and is co-sponsored by the Bethel Area Health Center. Later programs in a presentation on Thursday, Oct. 24, on Special Nutritional Needs of Women by Wendy Pollock of the Extension Service, and a program on Nov. 14 in Self-Esteem for Women, also by Mrs. Pollock.

All programs are free, but preregistration is encouraged to insure that the program will be held. To register, please call the SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program, 824-2780.

wastes from the eastern half of the country and then shipping them to the burial site. The burial site could handle one trainload of waste per month, they said.

The site-selection process has not been going smoothly, the officials admitted, with some states already filing suit against the DOE, claiming the selection procedures were not arrived at legally.

THE BETHEL FIRE DEPARTMENT responded to a fire at the Bryce Yates residence, in Newry, last Saturday. The fire proved a stubborn one to get under control because it was in the walls and ceiling.

CONVENTION CENTER
tion center in order to have it ready for spring conventions already booked.

Mr. Rasor said there is already a quarter-million dollars of conventions booked for the not-yet-built center.

On the other hand, given the delay in starting on the complex adjacent to the golf course, the pool and guest rooms would not have been finished in time for the peak winter season, and therefore debt service would have been accruing with little revenue coming in to offset it, Mr. Rasor explained.

For this reason, it was decided to put that portion of the expansion on hold, for the time being. But, said Mr. Rasor, "We already have a substantial amount invested in that building, which we'll start next fall...and have ready next winter."

Mr. Rasor admitted that changing the site of the convention center, plus having two separate buildings (the pool/guest room complex plus the convention center) will increase the cost of the expansion, but the increase should be offset by the savings on debt service on the complex.

Moreover, he said, he can finance the convention center with operating funds of the inn, plus his own personal funds.

Thank you,
Greenwood voters, for your support at yesterday's town meeting.

plus short-term financing by the bank.
Construction of the complex next year will still require heavy bank financing, he said.

He pointed out that the space in back of The Elms is a better place for the convention center than the original location, in that it gets the conventioners away from the recreational guests, and it puts the building near additional parking spaces.

Parking had been one of the prime considerations of the Planning Board, and of neighbors of the inn, when expansion plans were first mentioned last winter.
The Planning Board met with inn officials last Wednesday and seemed satisfied with the explanation that there would be 48 parking spaces in back of The Elms and convention center.

The convention center will be 70-feet by 80-feet and will be of wood frame construction covered with clapboards. It will have a large stone chimney as part of the front facade facing Broad Street, from which it will be set back at least 150 feet.
Inn officials expect the foundation to be dug next week.

EARLY LOGGING FILM

obsolete and tractors were replacing horses. An era was dying, and mechanization was taking over the woods.

Armed with a 16mm movie camera, Ames, president of Machias Lumber Co.
and a lumberman with 40 years of experience, filmed every aspect of the operation—from cutting the wood to loading lumber on schooners.

Within three years, the film was complete and a 13-page narrative script writ-ter for the silent footage. After Ames' retirement and death in 1950, the film was not seen again.

In the 1970s, the footage was donated to the Maine Historical Society in Portland by the wife of Ames' nephew.
It was later donated to UMO's Fogler Library and its special collections. The film was discovered on the library shelves in 1982, and, soon after, it took on a new life with the help of some experts.

"The beauty of the film is that it's an educational historic document and entertaining, like watching home movies," said Henry Nevison, the film's executive producer and UMO television and radio specialist. "It's a window to the past that's unique and exciting. For me, it was like finding the Dead Sea scrolls."

"From Stump to Ship" is probably one of the most complete film records of the long lumber industry, Nevison said, and finding the film was a fluke. "It was found in a box with a brittle old script and I wondered why no one had put it together before. I feel in many ways it's a project getting rejuvenated, like putting people back in a time machine."

With the help of a $9,632 grant from the Maine Humanities Council, preservation and assembly of the film was begun this spring. Research and technical assistance was provided by such experts as UMO historian D. David Smith, an authority on Maine's logging industry;
Dr. Edward Ives, professor of folklore and director of the Northeast Archives of Folklore and Oral History; Richard Judd, historian and author; and Jonathan Tankel, UMO journalism professor and expert on early documentary film.

The film had shrunk with age and could not be printed without first going through a re-humidification process, which was done in New York City.
Nevison was assisted in production of the film and printed materials by Karan Sheldon and David Weiss, independent media producers of Sheldon Weiss Productions of Blue Hill Falls.

The final version of the film, now approximately 28 minutes long, is accompanied by a soundtrack containing music of the era and an edited copy of the original script, narrated by renowned Maine humorist Tim Sample in the role of Alfred Ames.

the dump, that city plans to raise costs to $18 per ton, which would be a considerable increase over what Greenwood and Woodstock are now paying. Evidently the cost of oil is making this necessary.
The selectmen feel there is some legal question if this can be done as they already have a contract for the lower price. Auburn wants the towns involved to voluntarily increase their contracts.

Auburn City Manager "Skip" Morrison said he explained to the officials of the 27 towns that send their trash to the Auburn incinerator that the "tipping fees" being paid by the towns aren't covering the costs of burning the trash.
"We exchanged a lot of information," he said of his meeting Monday with the town officials.

He said he told them he wants to make a uniform fee for all towns, and that that fee would be an increase for all of them.
Currently, the fees vary from a low of $8.50 per ton to about $10 per ton—the fee paid by Greenwood-Woodstock. The difference in fees reflects the length of time a town has been a customer of Auburn, Mr. Morrison said, with those towns that signed up earlier having lower fees. Greenwood-Woodstock was the last customer accepted at the incinerator and therefore currently pays the highest fee.

The selectmen welcomed back Polly Croteau who will begin work as secretary again at the town office on Monday. Mrs.
Croteau has been on sick leave for a few weeks.

Cub Scout Pack 566

Cub Scout Pack 566 met for their first

Jeremiah Bolen.

Cubmaster Janice Harrington gave a brief description of the Cub Scout Advancement Program to the parents and Cubs explaining to them the importance of the parents role in scouts.

Dewaine Craig then explained the Webelos program and the plans for the upcoming year.

GREENWOOD AGAINST

said Stephen Seames, who suggested selling it by sealed bid.

Selectman Herb Dunham revealed that after the petition drive began to sell the building for $1 to Mr. McDonald, he had had three other offers for the building—the highest of which was an offer of $40,000.

Town meeting voters last spring, however, turned down the idea of selling the school, and therefore the other bids could not be entertained. But Mr.
Dunham said afterwards that with the renewed interest in doing something with the building, he wouldn't be surprised if the next annual town meeting authorizes the selectmen to sell it to the highest bidder.

That would please John Yates, who argued for selling the school. "I can't see a schoolhouse, just sitting there, just rotting. It could be paying taxes."

A woman who lives next to the school said she was all in favor of selling it, but not as a nightclub. And another woman argued that what the town needs is a place for teenagers to have fun, not a place for their parents to drink.

Mr. McDonald countered both arguments. "By spring it will be a question of who'll haul it away," he said to those who wanted to wait and sell it to someone else for more money. "This is a rescue operation."

And to those who opposed the idea of a nightclub, he said, "Mt. Abram can't succeed without it." But Mt. Abram Ski Slopes owner Don Cross said, "Mt.
Abram has been successful for many years before Mr. McDonald arrived."

Discussion was stopped after 20 minutes by a motion calling for the question, which passed. The voting on the question was done by secret ballot.

On a third article, voters approved taking $7,000 from surplus to fund capital improvements and operating expenses at the new stump dump.

The Cubs that attended are three activities this summer were awarded the Summer Time Pack Pin. Those Cubs were, Darrin Reynolds and Lloyd Sweetser.

The Cub Scouts will be canvassing Bethel the weeks of Oct. 8-18 taking their annual popcorn orders. Everyone is reminded that this is their opportunity to support the Cub Scout program. Any orders will be appreciated.

The next Pack meeting will be on Oct.
29 at 6:30 p.m. at the Telstar Cafeteria.
Den #3 will be doing the opening and closing ceremonies.

On Saturday, Sept. 28, 19 Cub Scouts from Pack 566, four Den chiefs from Troop 565 and several parents and leaders from Pack 566 participated in the annual Snow Shoe District Cub Scout Rally held at the Mexico Recreation Field. Pack 566 received with several ribbons. Every Cub Scout won a ribbon. It was a fun day for the Cubs and a proud day for the leaders.

GLORIA—A GENTLE GIANT

tinued as the storm traveled through
New Hampshire on its way to the White Mountains.

Locally, the most telling aspect of the tropical depression was that the winds it brought with it felt positively tropical.
People noticed that the temperature of the winds warmed up as the storm got nearer.

The nearest weather station keeping records as the storm passed through—Augusta Flight Service—recorded peak winds of 63 knots (69 mph) at 5:01 p.m.
and a low barometric pressure reading of 29.20 inches at 7:55 p.m. The wind direction shifted from southeast to southwest around 8 p.m., a flight service official told The Citizen.

Ernie Dyer, who has a private air strip in Rumford Point, said he noticed a low barometric pressure reading of 28.60 at about 8 p.m. He had no means for recording the wind velocity.

At the Outward Bound center, in Newry, a recording barometer noted a low of 28.30, at 7:45 p.m.—the lowest reading around—indicating that what remained of the eye of the storm came almost directly over the Bethel area.

Apple growers later reported some damage to their crops, but not extensive.
Lyon's Orchards reported about 500 bushels lost. Cooper Farms said their losses didn't seem too great, and they were thankful the pear crop had already been picked. Colonial Orchards reported some losses among MacIntosh, but said the Cortlands and other apples stayed on the trees.

Channel 10 (WCBB) and its local repeater (Channel 4) went off the air during the storm and stayed off all weekend.

Central Maine Power crews were busy all weekend and into the beginning of the week taking trees off wires, splicing cables, and restoring service to residential and industrial users. Much of West Paris and Woodstock were without power until Sunday, and some local areas did not get their power back until Monday.
CMP's John Elliot, said about 500 households in the Bethel area suffered losses of power for varying durations.
Most of the outages were in the Greenwood-Woodstock area. The Gore Road stayed dark into Sunday, as did Church Street, in Bryant Pond, and Rte.
232. The Bog Road in Gilead was dark for a day, as was Songo Pond Road. Close to Bethel, only the Grover Hill area lost power.

The Bethel Emergency Operations Center was manned in the basement of the fire station by civil emergency preparedness director Dick Hosterman and his assistant, Norm Clanton. But the purpose was mainly to see if everything worked as it should, and it did.

The day dawned in a spectacular manner. The sky and water were distinguishable only by the band of color across and along the pond's edge. The air was cool and balmy and the landscape glowing with foliage.

The ducks were dabbling off shore and the blue heron stood statuesquely still. A typical Maine, fall scene from our window.

It turned to a balmy warmth, a day so lovely. A few white clouds dared to put a blot on the sky.

I took my boat and went a-rowing. On a river one can go only up or down so I chose to explore the pond for a while. It was a good time to observe Nature's housekeeping. She goes on with her throwing away all year. Of course she is very untidy. She uses a brutal broom, the wind, the snow, the ice. In autumn the dead twigs snap and fall. The leaves of gold and red clog the ditches, cover the grass and roads. The ponds are choked and leaves float downstream. The colored carpet withered and dry quietly rots and enriches the earth. But Nature has her way to find what she seeks.

Along the way in by-paths there were hundreds of things that spoke of change. There were still some keepers of the pond; ducks, turtles, muskrats, and beavers. The borrow the earth but do not buy it. The waters belong to the wind and rain, to the sun and the seasons.

At this time I look for the cardinal flower. No other flower can compare with it in vivid coloring. Its brilliant red gleams to reflect from the water's edge with unequalled intensity. As I looked I felt like a Peeping Tom caught spying upon a lady before her mirror.

"As if some wounded eagle's breast
Slow throbbing o'er the plain,
Had left its airy path impressed
In drops of scarlet rain."

—Holmes

The early French Canadians were so struck with its beauty that they sent the plant to France as a specimen of what the wilds of the new world could yield.

Autumn is incredible. The mountainsides that all summer have seemed like an unbroken blanket of green, changed so suddenly to a blazing patchwork of orange and russet, gold and red, stitched together with the dark thread of evergreens.

So many things! Blue water fretted with goldenrod and purple asters.

A graceful white birch bowed low and I passed beneath it I noticed a robin's nest just above my head. How did the parents dare to build in this spot!

Just beyond this place I caught a glimpse of a red leaf that never completed its journey to the ground, but impaled upon a twig and was swaying with the motion of the trees. I watched, idly conscious of the warm sun on my back. Yes, autumn has come a-blasting!

Doris Hayes had three of her grandchildren visiting here Saturday night and during Sunday. On Monday, a friend from Gilead, Emeline Heath, who taught school here, came to call on her and one of her pupils, Anna Jarvenpaa.

Kathy Curtis encountered a large bull moose on her way to work early one morning. He held the right of way for some distance before she dared to pass.

On Saturday Doris Hayes and I went to the Retired Teachers meeting in Norway with Lettie Brooks.

Denise Adams and her beautiful little daughter, Jessica, one year old, came to see me on Monday.

Sunday I was taken to the pasture by two year old Mary Holt. We (?) frolicked among the cows. She kept busy pulling grass to offer to them. When we came to the biggest rock she of course went up like a mountain goat and thought I would. I did not but quite as easily as when I used to take her Daddy there.

Milton Inman has his camp, built in 1945, most taken down. It looks lonesome and deserted.

On Thursday Lettie Brooks and I prepared and served a boiled dinner at her farm on Curtis Hill. After dinner we had a Christmas tree and party. We do this each year for our Tired Teachers' Club before some of them leave for Florida for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Curtis were in Buckfield this week to visit their son, Albert, and family.

Community Chorus, under the direction of Harry Davis, has begun and is in need of more singers. No matter what your experience, please come. Don't be shy, it really is a lot of fun. There is a wide range of music, some easy, some more difficult, but nothing we can't handle if we all work together. Take it from me, I don't read music very well at all and I find it an enjoyable time to stretch my vocal chords. And after the summer off, those chords need a LOT of stretching.

The crayon monster has been at her little tricks again. Only this time it was with an ink pen. Seems Jaime got up at Daddy's desk and got her hot little hands on the checkbook. She made out a check... there wasn't one inch of the face of the check that didn't have a mark on it. And when we caught her in the act, she just smiled sweetly as if to say, "Oh, hi, Mom and Dad... I was just making out a check for some Mr. and Mrs." Oh, the innocence of childhood...

Speaking of childhood, we've added "A, B, C, D" to our repertoire from Sesame Street. Next week we start calculus... with Kermit the Frog.

At this writing we might be in line for a shot from Hurricane Gloria. I hope it goes out to sea, but it doesn't look very promising for a complete miss. We'll see...

Is it my imagination or has this column gotten shorter the last couple of weeks? It seems to me I've once (or 30 times) before about not getting any news. I've exhausted my list of folks to call this week. So, no complaints please.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

As I sit here it is a beautiful day and doesn't seem possible the weathermen are worried about a major hurricane striking New England in a day or two. Remember how scared I got in the '38 hurricane and suspect that is why I have never really liked winds. Also in the early '50s when Frank and I, and I think Frankie and George (maybe only Frankie) were living in what they called the Gingerbread House on Main Street, Norway, a large tree fell onto the porch by our door and for several days we had to duck underneath the trees to get out. This was the only way out of our apartment, but they couldn't move the tree until the insurance adjusters had come. Of course, this is minor but does make step to think.

Pat Saunders went to New Bedford, N.H., Monday to take courses related to her job.

George and Betty Gilbert; Raymond and Marjorie Coleman, Mechanic Falls; spent Tuesday to Saturday camping and fishing at a camping ground near Moose Lake. They had beautiful weather but said surprisingly the lake was rough almost every day.

Sylvia Benson went to Hebron, Sunday afternoon to visit her sister, Judy Small and children, Tim and Kim Small. Sylvia and Judy's sister, Helen Wallace and husband of Hallowell also visited.

Bradley Benson spent part of Sunday with his folks, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benson.

Sunday, Gerry Shimamura picked up Dawn and Shandy Shimamura and they went to the Payette church where Dawn's grandfather, Rev. James Emerson was guest speaker. Rev. Emerson was pastor of this church years ago. They also visited Dawn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Emerson Jr. and family.

Dr. and Mrs. Lennie Shaw, Jon and Jen, spent Friday to Sunday, in Hull, Mass., visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Jules Shaw, at the beach. Saturday the twins went swimming in the ocean.

Dawn and Ryan Seames, children of Debbie Seames, were to ride in the Cystic Fibrosis Marathon beginning on Main Street, Bethel.

Debbie Seames, Kathy Mason and Judy Angevine went to the TAPS (teachers and parents) potluck supper. Jessica (Coolidge's and Ryan Seames' class won the mascot for having the most parents attend.

Dawn Seames is taking flute lessons in Bethel beginning Wednesday.

John and Sue Laban took sheep to the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Mass. They spent five days at the Exposition. They won one blue ribbon, three seconds and others. They also won Premier Romney Breeder. This signified they were breeders of Best Romney flock there. Good going, John and Sue.

As we hear the reports of the natural happenings around the world may we really realize that with our talks of war and wars, we really have no control over the happenings of our natural disasters.

GINGER KELLY'S MAINE STREET REALTY has moved from offices in the Cole Block to new quarters in the Main Street building that houses the Fabric Emporium. Mrs. Kelly recently purchased the building. Above, she poses with her associates and their new sign. They are: Marcia Denison, Rick Whitney, Mrs. Kelly, Gene Kelly and Jackie Gunther.

Western winds cast tangy autumn scents aloft. Illusions of mysterious pathways, paved in gold—line the roadsides. Mists of early morning climb high, where in the distant east, the black gloom of night unwraps her cloak, and steals away, as dawn breaks across the horizon.

The tiny town, yet slumbering, shrouded and veiled at this hour in the morning haze, permeates a sense of trickery, contrition and mischief, as eerie shadows lurk amidst the forest.

Then, as if in a carefully prepared "grande entrance"—(upstaging these sinister events) October arrives in all her glory.

Ebony candles on the sunac stand like so many silent sentinels—guarding the entrance to the hedgerows.

The mystery of the season unfolds as the tiny silken parachutes of the milkweed, drift tightly overhead, awaiting the soft breeze that will deposit them far away from the mother plant.

Orange pumpkins piled high upon a wooden carriage—and the nectar of the cider, lingers cold and sharp upon the palette.

October, the month of mystery and intrigue, to all who start their very life upon earth in this month of the harvest, the struggles of cold winter lies ahead—but throughout life, gives a foundation and fascination, and a zestiness that lies so deep inside one's birth sign—makes each added burden one worth conquering and solving. A new adventure.

So—

Herald the autumn
With mists in her air.
Herald the autumn
With its colors, spice, rare.
Herald the autumn—
Her treasures, her intrigues, and her wares.
Blessings and peace—

Some ladies attended a crafts party held at the home of Georgie MacArthur recently.

Anna Belanger has been entertaining her mother, who is 85 years old, and hails from Berlin, this past week.

Mary Belanger has been busy getting her seven cords of firewood into her barn—in her spare time. (Mary is in her 80's.)

Joline Ferrand and Amy of Berlin, N.H., called upon me recently. Other callers included Elaine Packard of Bethel.

Kathy Sweetser and children attended a supper hosted by the Bible Speaks Church at Rumford Corner one evening last week. This church sends a bus to pick up children and their families who desire to attend church services held periodically there.

Groups of cedar waxwings flit among the choke-cherry bushes, and grosbeaks are arriving early at our feeders. Other calls of the summer birds have congregated and left the area, as if their built-in radar system had told them that "Gloria" was approaching.

Colors remain spectacular at this writing, and by the looks of the traffic, many are heading for the mountains to view this array of God's handiwork.

A beautiful, cool morning today. Russell said it was 41 degrees when he first looked this morning. Don't know what time that was but it seems to be warming up good. The sun is shining and the leaves that have turned color are showing off their beauty. There seems to be getting more and more color for the folks to see when out riding around. I love to see all the colors that are flaunting their beauty to passersby.

Had a good time last week with my granddaughter, Courtney, but she came on with a cold and of course, Grandma got it, too, and it turned into bronchitis as usual, so have felt rather miserable. Wynona came for Courtney on Friday and how quiet the house was after she left.

There was a wedding in the family on Saturday, Sept. 21, as Lawrence and Grace Yates' granddaughter, Clarissa Ann Taylor and Kenneth Tripp were married. The wedding took place at the bride's home with the immediate family present. After the ceremony, the bride and groom, as well as the relatives drove to the Legion Hall in South Paris where a reception was held. Grace told me that about 30 people attended the reception; a great many more had been asked but didn't get there. I am afraid I was one of them as the bronchitis wouldn't let me go anywhere. However, I wish Chrissy, as we all know her, and Ken a happy and successful life of love and hope it is a dream come true for both of them for many, many years.

Tried to do a little even though I felt sick and Russell pulled some of the beets on Sunday and we canned 12 pints of pickled beets. Had been trying to do a little knitting and finished an article I was working on so felt that I did well.

My cold which had turned to bronchitis had tightened up Sunday night instead of staying loose, so called the doctor on Monday and got some medication to help it. When I feel as though my chest is on fire, it is time to let the doctors give me a hand. The medication is 'helping, though I still cough and raise a lot of junk, and I am thankful for that.

We had an accident up toward West Paris, on High Street, the other day. I think it was Tuesday. I don't know much about it so won't say much only that I hope so one was hurt badly. We saw the sheriff's car go up by and heard the ambulances coming and saw two of them go by so was afraid there had been an accident. No sirens when they went back so figured the folks involved weren't hurt too badly. Hope we are right in thinking that.

Have any of you been over the Harrison road, lately? They are doing quite a lot of road work over by twin bridges and up the hills and around the curve. It has needed work done it for years and only wish they would continue on from where they are going to leave off. The

Mr. and Mrs. Spike Learned from Orono visited Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hastings Sunday.

Miss Velora Kimball of Yarmouth and Jimmy Kimball of Greenwood visited their parents over the weekend, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kimball.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kimball and Miss Velora Kimball attended the harvest supper Saturday.

There were nine officers of Alder River Grange #175 who were installed at Pleasant Valley Grange in West Bethel Thursday, Sept. 25. There were three other granges that had their officers installed, also—Pleasant Valley, Bear River, and West Paris. The installing team was made up of various members of the Maine State Grange. They did a marvelous job of installing the four granges. Alder River Grange officers installed were: lecturer, Myra Foster; steward, Agnes Howe; assistant steward, Richard Stevens; lady assistant steward, Hulda Stevens; chaplain, Floribel Haines; secretary, Nancy Mercer; treasurer, Stanley Howe; Flora, Joanne Scarso; executive committee, Francis Ward.

The state finally started to blacktop the road from the Rumford line to Locke Mills on Thursday. One side is almost completed and it sure makes a difference. They began working on it again Monday, Sept. 30.

road has been so rough and bumpy for so long that it will seem great when they get the job done. Also, there is construction on another bridge over towards Fryeburg which will be a great improvement. I am glad to see the work being done on the highways where it is needed so badly.

Before I get done writing, I would like to apologize to all for putting the article in the paper about installation of officers Saturday night the 28th. At that time, that was the plan as far as I knew but shortly after the mail had gone, taking my writing with it, I had a phone call saying the date and place had been changed and installation of officers of Bear River Grange would take place at West Bethel Sept. 26. It was too late to undo what I had written so I wanted to explain in this writing what happened.

As I understand it there were four or five granges having their officers installed on the 28th. I had hoped to be able to go but was not feeling up to par so decided to stay home and get my beauty sleep which I really needed, and be able to attend the regular meeting on the 28th.

Thanks to the frost holding off, we are still enjoying our pretty flowers and will as long as we can. They have given us much pleasure this year and hope we have the same chance another year. Take care, one and all and don't get these colds and viruses that are floating around. They hit without warning and can get one down in a hurry.

Newry

The Ladies Circle of the Newry Community Church will meet at the home of Louise Tetley Oct. 7, at 7:30 p.m. Freda Robertson will assist the hostess.

Thelma Lowery, Betsy Blake, Nancy Wight, Eleanor Morton, Louise Tetley, Gilbert Seeley, Olive Anderson, and Eleanor Davis were in Rumford bowling Sept. 25. Nancy Wight was high scorer with 103. The group went out to lunch after bowling.

The new elementary school in Woodstock was approved by a very small turnout of voters Tuesday, Sept. 24. Actually only slightly more than 25 percent of District 44's registered voters approved the school. The school was approved by 86 percent of those voting with Greenwood casting the largest percentage of yes votes with 92.3 percent. Woodstock was second with 88.9 percent, Andover 82.5 percent, Bethel 86.9 percent, and Newry 60.8 percent.

The title of Pastor Hanscom's message Sunday morning at the Newry Community Church was "The Son of God," with scripture reading from St. Mark 8:27-30. Along with other area churches part of the service was dedicated to the hostages.

Robin and Jim Viola and Joe Viola, Pittsfield, Mass., visited Robin's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Tetley, last weekend.

The Ladies Circle of the Newry Community Church, the Mothers Club and the Windy Valleys Snowmobile Club hosted a get acquainted party for new residents in town at the municipal building Sunday afternoon. Some 35 invitations were sent out to newcomers to Newry. Six new couples accepted. Refreshments were served and those attending reported a very good time.

Thirty two percent of Newry's 214 registered voters cast ballots in the Woodstock School Referendum on Sept. 24, with 80 percent of those voting casting yes votes. The count was 42 yes to 27 no.

The Upton General Store is getting new siding. It will be very attractive when it is finished.

Walter and Felicia of Westbrook visited his sister, Margaret, last week.

Bergerons have installed a new mailbox. Last weekend they attended Farmington Fair and visited family. Mike's sister from California joined the gathering.

As I write this, I listen to a Portland radio station which is broadcasting hurricane warnings, cancellations and evacuation programs. During the 1938 hurricane which we called a blowdown, we had no such tracking and pre-warning. It wouldn't have changed the woods much where millions of feet of pine blew down. A saw mill was set up at the boat landing on Umbagog Lake near the Maine-New Hampshire border and much salvaged wood was sawn into lumber. This mill operated for two or three years.

Ellen Heywood scheduled Friday for her annual southern migration. She stayed long enough to enjoy the warm Indian summer and the unusually beautiful fall foliage.

I have to retract an item in last week's news that Alanson Cummings had a pacemaker implanted. He went to the hospital for that purpose, but the operation was postponed until a later date.

Esther Farnum of South Paris spent the day with her niece, Harriett Stowell last Thursday.

Ruth Gordon of Norway was been spending some time at the home of Ann Mason.

Arthur and Ruth Gilbert returned Sunday, the 8th, from a 15 day tour of Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

Fannie Cummings, Cathryn, Alanson, Shane and Angela Lovejoy attended a musical on the history of the American flag at the Locke Mills Legion Hall last Thursday evening.

Jim and Doris Nevison of Texas have been guests of their daughter and family, the Rick Lewises, since Sept. 19. While here they took a cruise to Nova Scotia on the Scotia Prince.

Alanson Cummings returned home from the Osteopathic Hospital last week.

Arts & Crafts Festival draws artists, visitors

The second annual Blue Mountains Arts & Crafts Festival, at Sunday River Ski Resort, drew good crowds of visitors Sunday, as everyone seemed to be out in the sunshine for a fall drive. Saturday was a different story, as people were still recuperating from Hurricane Gloria.

Organizer Paula Berry said visitors came from throughout New England, as the festival had received regional publicity.

Exhibitors were Jo Stevens and Romeo Baker (paintings), Monica Mann (calligraphy), Fran Wolf (quilting and stenciling), Arline Bernier (beads and balsams), Sheila and Karen Miller (cakes and cookies), Shirley Clough (clowns and things).

Also, Sue Laban (homespun yarns), Geraldine Machia and Bonnie Clough (machine-knit items), the Colbys (beads and woodworking), Paul Kailey (carved birds), Bonnera Potters (pottery), Norman and Eleanor Davis (gems and jewelry), Neva Coolidge and Ruth Silver (cabin crafts and critters), Carol Campbell and Marlene Marshall (Carmo Crafts), Sandy Kaplan (crystals and jewelry).

Also, Friedendorf Pottery (pottery), Mary Morin (machine knitting), Jennifer Pierce (dried flowers and wreaths), Irene Anderson (beads, crocheting, needlework), Paul Beaton (blacksmithing), Alberta White (doll clothes and stuffed toys), the Crosses (woodworking), Sara Shepley and Jewel Clark (handpainted shirts), Jan Todd (baskets), Helen Morton (paintings), Cynthia Wakefield (knitwear), Lucy Rogers (Hilltop handspun yarns), Viola Hazelton (knitting and quilting), Barbara Brooks (stenciling), the Kenistons (woodturning), Diane Friedlander and Litty Parker (stained glass).

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce had a table loaded with information on the area and had someone on hand to answer questions from visitors.

Sam Chapman entertained on voice and guitar both days, and Sunday River served a delicious chicken barbecue—inside Saturday, outside Sunday. Randy Baker brought his workhorse over on Sunday to give free rides to the kiddies.

The rain was most welcome to those who have wells. I hope it doesn't hurt the foliage.

Mrs. Grace Nelson went to Biddeford Tuesday to see her doctor. She also visited Eula Trimback at North Waterford.

Peter Fox and family were busy Sunday getting their wood in for winter, and also the Adams family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Nelson and Christa of Winslow visited his mother over the weekend.

Mrs. Vesta Nelson was hostess to a housewares party Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Gertrude Yemma and Mrs. Grace Nelson went to Kennebunk Wednesday to visit friends.

The new post office is now ready for business. Everyone thinks it is a nice looking one.

Hannah F. Richardson Tent #19, Daughters of Union Veterans, met Wednesday night, Sept. 25, at the former Stoneham School House. Twelve members and one guest, Brother Stephen Taylor of the Sons of Veterans organization, were present.

Preparations were formalized for the annual inspection to be held here Oct. 23, jointly with Elizabeth Crockett Blake Tent of Norway and Judith Grover Tent of Bryant Pond. Inspecting officer will be Past Dept. President Edith Pulkkinen of South Paris. A 6:30 p.m. supper will be served at the church vestry and meeting at the K. of P. Hall following. North Paris

By EVELINE B. VATCHER

Joe Cupo, our weather boy, says "but-ton up" for the wind and rain. Hope we are not treated like Mexico City. Wasn't that terrible? So many deaths and homeless people. As I jot down these few items on this Thursday evening, the moon is "coming over the mountain" in back of the North Paris Church. It doesn't look like rain but the weather changes very fast.

The supper at the Community Hall was a success and plenty of food. One lady said "It was like a family reunion," and it is. It is good to get together and be congenial and we enjoy it. The next supper will be Oct. 26 with ham, vegetables and all the fixings and it will be the last one until another summer.

Earl Cordwell has return to his home from Norway hospital and we hope he can be better now. They are undecided as yet about their usual trip to Arizona. Maybe this year they can fly instead of driving.

Eveline was at her doctor's office on Monday and he gave her new medication in hopes to drive the shingles out. It's been a long time since their start on Feb. 20.

Callers at Lawrences: Lloyd Huntley, Joe Kalinowski, Arnold Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vatcher and Margaret Stevens. "Pete" Andrews called at Joe and Eveline Vatcher's Thursday with news about the "Parisians" dance and the Grange and Tri-Town supper. Let's go and help our local needy people.

Mrs. Rhoda Vatcher went to Dover, N.H., Sunday, to the home of her nephew to celebrate her natal day. Wednesday she went to the home of her son, Kenneth and family, Lynn, Mass., to babysit while Kenneth and Carol went away for a few days.

The Old Parisian Orchestra and other musicians will be sponsoring a dance Oct. 12 at the West Summer Grange Hall, to benefit Brian Fortier, who needs a heart and liver transplant, and "Little Andy" Frechette, a five-year-old leukemia victim.

The Tri-Town Ambulance and Pleasant Pond Grange will also sponsor a supper in the downstairs Grange Hall from 6 to 7:30, featuring Arland Farrar's famous bean hole beans and all the fixings. Entertainment in the upstairs hall between 6:30 and 8. Dancing 8 p.m. to midnight with old fashioned contra dances, waltzes, fox trots and polkas.

Thank goodness things have quieted down around here!

Kids are back at school and busy with their activities. Dave is at Lackland Air Force Base in basic training and Dick went back to work Monday after a three week vacation. My routine is back in order somewhat! Still have lots of canning and freezing ahead of me.

The Albany Church Circle wishes to thank everyone in the community who helped in any way with making this summer's supper the most successful yet! Without your support we would be sunk!

Also a big thank you to Erland and Nellie Hatstat for the donation of a furnace for the Town House.

Just a couple of notes for you to put on your calendar: There will be a Halloween party for Albany children (parents are welcome) on Oct. 31 from 7-8 p.m. Also a potluck Christmas supper and tree on

The Greenwood Fire Department will be cleaning chimneys again this year. Please contact Hugh Swan or any fireman. The auxiliary wishes to remind new retirees who have not yet received their smoke detector to get in touch with an auxiliary member and one will be installed for you free of charge.

The Union Church held a work bee at the church Saturday morning for inside work. The harvest sale and supper was held in the afternoon and evening.

The Locke Mills Union Church will hold its trustees meeting at the church at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 9.

Bertha Flanders saw a bull moose in Harry and Margery Swan's back yard the other day. He did not stick around to see if he'd be welcomed.

Locke Mills seemed to get through the storm with a minimum of damage. Some antennas were blown over and a few people were without power but even the tree damage was slight compared to what it could have been.

The Fire Department Auxiliary held its regular meeting Tuesday evening at the fire station. Those present were Denise Swan, Sally Melville, Malinda Seames, Joanne Cole, Lorraine Mills and Barbara Dunham. The Christmas Craft Fair was discussed and also the possibility of purchasing a microwave oven to warm up food at the suppers and the

The old Parisian Orchestra and other musicians will be sponsoring a dance on Oct. 12, at the West Sumner Grange Hall to benefit Brian Fortier, who needs a heart and liver transplant and "Little Andy" Frechette, a five year old leukemia victim.

The Tri Town Ambulance and Pleasant Pond Grange will also sponsor a supper in the downstairs Grange Hall from 6:00 to 7:30, featuring Arland Farrar's famous bean hole beans, and all the fixings. Entertainment in the upstairs hall sandwiches at the fair.

My apologies for the lack of news items these past few weeks. No one has phoned in with any and I have not done much phoning either. I've been trying to fight off an identified germ this past week and so far it seems to be winning.

Sunday School classes will begin Sunday, Oct. 6, at 10:30 to 11:30 at the Locke Mills Union Church. Teachers will be as follows: Margaret Ring, three year olds; Debbie Swan, kindergarten; Barbara Dunham, first grade; Diane Howe, second grade; Denise Swan, third grade; Cheryl Young, fourth grade; Melinda Seames, fifth and sixth grades; Bruce Swan, seventh and eighth grades; Silver Leamon (interim pastor), high school; superintendent, Denise Swan; secretary-treasurer, Bruce Swan.

between 6:30 and 8:00. Dancing 8 p.m. to midnight with old fashioned contra dances, waltzes, fox trots and polkas. Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Felt and Marion Strout of Winthrop and Mechanic Falls respectively called on their brother, Richard Felt and family last week.

Richard Felt attended Noland Grange where he and Dot Canwell entertained. Esther and Olive Davis were in Winthrop Tuesday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Irving Cushman. They have the second crop of raspberries just ripening off and were they delicious. We had a big bowl for dinner along with an abundance of other goodies—delicious corn too. Irving plants in relays so there is a steady stream of goodies coming in from the garden all the time.

I called on Mr. and Mrs. Herman Barnett at South Paris Monday and found Herman having trouble with a pain in his side. He was to go to the hospital for x-rays in the afternoon. It was reported as pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Taisto Koskela attended Windsor Fair. They reported a large attendance there and a fair that was different. Many interesting things to see and demonstrations of all sorts put on for those who were interested in seeing how things were done. They also attended the Maine State Trappers Conference in Acton a while ago, and were in Michigan for the conference of the Fin-niah Association. They traveled in their camper for that occasion and were gone for a few days.

FROM THE BETHEL AREA Health Center

To celebrate National Community Health Center Week

The National Association of Community Health Centers has proclaimed the week of Oct. 6-12 as National Community Health Center Week. There are approximately 700 health centers nationwide which have been developed over the last 20 years. Research shows that community health centers reduce hospitalization and that health center patients have fewer operations, fewer visits to physicians for illness, and higher rates of protection against medical problems than the general population.

It has been over the past 10 years that rural community health centers have been developed in Maine.

The health centers have been created by community residents who have responded to the need for health care by determining what specific health services should be provided locally, recruiting health professionals and coordinating health services. In addition to traditional medical services, rural community health services provide programs in the areas of mental health, substance abuse, family planning, women and children, elderly services, etc., where the need exists and where there is a strong community commitment to seeing that the need is met.

The Bethel Area Health Center is one of 30 rural community health centers in Maine.

In celebration of national community health center week, the Bethel Area Health Center will be holding Open House from Oct. 6-12. All area citizens are invited to visit and become better acquainted with the services that are available. In particular the lending library will be highlighted and materials on preventive health care will be available.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All those interested in seeing the film "From Stump to Ship," which depicts Maine logging operations in the 1930s in the Machias area, are urged to attend the area showing sponsored by the Bethel Historical Society, Thursday, Oct. 3, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Due to the large number of people expected for this film, the showing has been moved to Bingham Hall Auditorium at Gould Academy. Following a short business meeting of the society, the film will be shown, followed by a discussion led by Dr. Edward Ives, director of the Northeast Folklife Center of the University of Maine at Orono.

After the discussion there will be a reception and refreshments in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House. Anyone having lumbering "what's its" or items relating to operations in the Maine woods (photographs, artifacts, account books, letters, diaries, etc.) is invited to bring them to the reception for exhibit and discussion. There is no admission charge for either event and the public is cordially invited to view the film and attend the reception.

APPLE SEASON IS UPON US, and at Lyon Orchards, in Bethel, Jamaicans Fenton Mitchell (left) and John Mothersill are helping harvest the smaller-than-normal crop. The two pickers are among 7,000 Jamaicans brought to the northeastern U.S. to pick apples. When apple-picking is finished, Mr. Mothersill says he will go to Florida, to join 10,000 Jamaicans there who will harvest the state's sugar cane crop. Mr. Mothersill has been coming to the U.S. as a contract laborer for 13 years. He is married and has five children. During the half-year he is in Jamaica, he works in construction. He and Mr. Mitchell, who is a bachelor, both hail from Kingston, Jamaica. While here, they live in a house provided by Herb Lyon, who says they can outpick anyone around, including himself. Mr. Mothersill, the more-experienced picker, can pick 150 bushels a day; Mr. Lyon says.

COMMUNITY LIBRARY HOURS

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program has joined together with the community libraries in Bethel, Andover and Bryant Pond to provide open library hours one evening each week. This will allow adults who work during the day to visit the library, and offer a quiet place for students to do homework or work on research projects. Adult and Community Director Cathy Newell hopes that the extended library hours will be a useful addition to the learning opportunities for adults already available through the SAD #44 program.

The Andover Library will be open on Thursday evenings from 6-8, according to librarian Janet Hutchins. The Bethel Library will be open on Wednesdays from 6-8, and the Whitman Memorial Library in Bryant Pond will be open on Tuesdays from 6-8. Monique Rolfe and Edna York will share duties at the Bethel Library, and Nadja Bollo is the librarian in Bryant Pond.

The community library hours began during the week of Sept. 23 and will follow the school year calendar.

FROM THE
Telstar Guidance Office

Today, Oct. 2, approximately 80 college-bound juniors and seniors are attending the College Fair at the University of Southern Maine. Over 200 colleges from all over the country were represented, giving students a fine opportunity to receive first-hand information regarding many institutions of higher education. The fair allows students to collect in-depth information in a short period of time. Mr. Hart, Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Dreher, and Mrs. Higgins accompanied the group.

Freshmen parents are encouraged to come to tonight's Parent Night in the library, at 7 p.m. A full agenda of guidance-coordinated activities is planned, including parental concerns, decision-making, career exploration, study habits, change, tutoring and more. Parents who have attended in the past have found these meetings very informative and helpful. Please do try to attend—you'll be glad you did.

Beginning Oct. 7, all grade-10 students will take the SRA Achievement Test series. This battery tests student skills in vocabulary, reading comprehension, language mechanics and usage, spelling, mathematics computation, concepts and problem-solving, reference materials, social studies and science.

The Freshman Awareness Workshop, held last Monday and Tuesday, was a huge success. Plans are underway to have a follow-up to this in the early spring. Thanks and appreciation is extended to Sunday River Ski Resort for the use of their lodge and to the special guest speakers: Bill Wood, Mike Cohen, Marge Bartlett, Bill Williams, Diana Webster and the Bethel Area Health Center.

The National Honor Society, under Mr. Hart's direction, will sponsor a PSAT/SAT workshop next Saturday, Oct. 12, at Telstar, between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. This workshop is designed to help improve student test scores and is promoted by the Achievement Center, of Manchester, N.H. Interested students, grades 10-12, from all area high schools are encouraged to attend. The cost of this 7-hour workshop is $65. Students may enroll by calling the Guidance Office, at 824-2138.

Keith W. Wight, son of Stephen and Margaret Wight of Newry, has entered Bates College, Lewiston, as a freshman. He is a 1985 graduate of Telstar Regional High School.

Newry town office

The Board of Selectmen met Tuesday morning of this week. Some discussion occurred with regard to contracting plowing of winter roads. Two contractors made inquiries about the amount of road to be winter-maintained and the equipment to be used. One of them will meet with the selectmen next week to discuss this further. A special town meeting would be held before the roads are let out to contract for plowing and sanding. The present town truck will be taken for repairs as soon as the parts are received. One contractor might be interested in purchasing the truck and plows if he should take the contract. Contracting for the winter of 1986-87 will be studied further, even if no contract is let this winter.

A pole contract was signed to allow the Central Maine Power Company to set an additional pole in Sunday River Village. The selectmen wish to extend their thanks to Stanley Roberts for a contribution for tarring on his road last summer. They also wish to express their appreciation to the Bethel Fire Department for their excellent service at the fire at Bryce Yates' residence, Sept. 28. The fire department was there and on the job in 18 minutes after the call was placed. Mr. and Mrs. Yates, who were vacationing in Alaska, had not been contacted Monday. It is understood that the house, although still standing, is a total loss.

Mary Tripp, tax collector, reported that although she had not completed her monthly collection report on taxes for September, over $50,000 in taxes were collected and deposited in September. Interest on unpaid taxes started Oct. 1. John Gauthier, plumbing inspector, turned in plumbing permits and funds. A treasurer's warrant was made to pay current bills.

The next selectmen's meeting will be held Oct. 8 at 9 a.m. at the R.C. Foster Municipal Building.

IT LOOKS LIKE A BAD ACCIDENT between a school bus and a car, but it was only a mass casualty drill held Sunday in West Paris.

31 injured in crash—
but it's only a drill

An accident Sunday in West Paris involving a school bus and an automobile left 31 youths and adults injured.

That is what emergency personnel discovered when they arrived at the scene of the "accident", on Dick Roy's property off Rte. 26 in West Paris—usually known as the site of the Molycock Mud Bog.

They also discovered the "accident" was a drill, to test the ability of emergency services to deal with a mass casualty situation.

Ambulance crews from throughout Oxford County responded, as did some area fire departments. Firefighters used the "jaws-of-life" to extricate the victims inside the automobile, while EMTs raced through the school bus, checking to see which injuries needed the most prompt attention. The injured, and the dead, were placed on the ground, where they were cared for prior to being taken away to Stephens Memorial Hospital.

At the hospital, staff also participated in order to test their ability to handle such an emergency. Sheriff's deputies controlled traffic. In all, some 100 people took part in the exercise.

Elderhostellers gather

This week's list of Elderhostel participants at Sunday River Inn includes people from California, Kansas, Missouri, Alabama and Indiana, as well as the northeastern states. The "hostellers" are thrilled to be in this area for the peak of foliage and Fryburg Fair, in addition to the Elderhostel experience.

Courses being offered this week include Stained Glass, with Robin Fraser, Nineteenth Century Rural Culture, with Sue Laban, and New England Architecture, with Jim Yarnell.

There are some openings remaining in the Oct. 27-Nov. 2 session, with courses in Indian lore, with Eric Wight, Woodcarving, with Paul Kelley, and Nineteenth

BROWN BAG PROGRAM
BEING OFFERED ON WEDNESDAY, OCT. 16

In conjunction with the Bethel Area Health Center, David Preble will be offering a community service to the elderly concerning the use of their medications, including over the counter medications.

The program is set up for Wednesday, Oct. 16, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. at the Community Room at the Bethel House on Main Street. (Inadvertently, the incorrect date was announced last week by the Health Center.)

David Preble, the pharmacist from Prim's, and Muriel Whitney R.N. from the Bethel Area Health Center, will conduct the program. Mr. Preble has a computer programmed with 240 drugs that are commonly used by the elderly, and their interactions. He will be able to screen for interactions of drugs with other drugs, with vitamins or even over the counter medications or even certain foods. Questions will be answered concerning the drug usage, hints offered on taking medicines and side effects will be assessed.

It is important to bring over-the-counter medications as well as prescription drugs to the program. Pre-registration is desired also, as Mr. Preble must allow approximately 20 minutes for each client. The program is free. Please call Mr. Preble at 824-2820 to pre-register. If more time is needed the program will be expanded.

Century Rural Culture, with Sue Laban. Contact Steve or Peggy Wight at Sunday River Inn for details on joining the fun.

Elderhostel programs are offered on 800 campuses around the world and are open to anyone who is at least 60 years old.
